0788 12 Fire brigade – VW T1 (Type 2) bus

0488 03 Flatbed tractor-trailer (MAN)

0670 49 Tipping trailer (Henschel HS 3-180)

0652 10 Wheel loader (Volvo L350H)

The Volvo wheel loader is claiming all attention at 1:87 construction site with its strong, not to say brawny, build. WIKING has miniaturised the latest L350H generation with unmatched attention to detail. Among its stand-out features are the intricate attachments including a ladder and railing, which highlight the imposing size right behind the bucket. Its stunning magnitude comes even more to the fore when contrasted side by side with Neuson's Track Dumper 15 – two construction site powerhouses of opposite size. The new Mercedes-Benz E-Class models come with an AMG finish and as a Police deployment vehicle. Bringing back fond memories are the new modern classics rolling into the product selection – chief among them, the Henschel tipping trailer HS 3-180 and the VW T1 (Type 2) fire brigade minibus with roof rack. Both models epitomise the devotion the traditional modellers at WIKING have for automotive history. The same holds true, of course, for the MAN flatbed tractor-trailer with a cargo of steel girders and the Opel Rekord Caravan '60, which used to operate with a radio direction-finding antenna for the telecommunications service of Deutsche Bundespost. The rowing boat mounted on the trailer – which, naturally, floats – is a throw-back to the upcoming generation of recreational enthusiasts of the late sixties. Aficionados of 1:32 scale precision models will delight in the remarkable John Deere 7310R with its rear twin tyres – a veritable farmland giant. Wiking-Modellbau GmbH & Co. 0527 05 Container semi-trailer (Hanomag Henschel)

0955 38 Joskin feed transporter N-gauge 1:160

Those were the days: The legendary Citroën 15 Six is flying the colours of the Yacco corporation – advertising at the sides on the doors and sporting a luggage rack on the roof. Exemplifying the rebirth of the Gasolin brand after the war, the VW T1 (Type 2), is showing off the company's colours with an attractive, contemporary design. WIKING crafted its design including the brand lettering and silver roof plus the Gasolin logo on the "Bulli" nose from original templates. The same applies to the VW Beetle 1200, which displays once the sovereign post horn of Germany's former national postal service on all sides. Customers who wish to provide some shelter for their Beetle can set up the corrugated sheet metal garage in the postal yard. Years before the Mercedes-Benz L 3500 traversed the roads of Germany hauling cement to the construction site in a silo semi-trailer rig. One decade later, Hanomag Henschel propelled the fledgling trade with overseas container by teaming up with Fruehauf. Completing the selection of heavy-duty haulers is the mighty furniture box truck made by esteemed Wuppertal specialist Ackermann. Back in the seventies, Adam Kroth travelled thousands of kilometres with the real-life sibling of this WIKING classic to move furniture from the Taunus region to every corner of the nation. Modelled after the Kramer original, the wheel loader is available with an authentic accessory pack with five pallets holding construction material. N-gauge devotees will be happy to complement their current farming collection with the Joskin feed transporter. Finally, Wiking is celebrating a reunion with two classic boat trailers that are pulled by a Mercedes-Benz and a VW Variant.
