WIKING is still way ahead of the market when it comes to model agricultural vehicles on a scale of 1:87: tractor enthusiasts will be thrilled with the model of the Deutz Agrottron X 720. This intricately detailed tractor has filled the last gap to complete the series of leading brands from the international agricultural machinery industry. Alongside the very latest VW Golf VI as a two-door model, another newcomer to the range is the legendary VW Porsche with its official type designation 914. Because it was very different from the other Porsches, the two-seater mid-engined car was once derided by sports car enthusiasts - now WIKING has deservedly created a model in its honour. Fans of classic vehicles have yet another limited edition set to delight at from the series marking the years of the economic miracle: this one is entitled "Fuel for Berlin". This series of WIKING models was created using the historic original moulds of the traditional model-makers and it has brought legendary models to life. Another new model which joins the range is the Mercedes Benz L 710 as a box truck in the livery of the police service.
