WIKING starts off the new model year with a classic offensive – automotive legends from the years of the economic miracle will delight 1:87 collectors in 2011! The traditional model-makers have created models of the original Goggomobil as well as the impressive Panorama version of the Ford Transit. WIKING's final member of the desirable trio of new models which will thrill so many fans of the brand is the Hanomag Diesel flatbed truck as all three models are classic vehicles which were once a common sight on the streets of the emerging

Federal Republic of Germany. The new passenger car trailer with two loading ramps opens up new perspectives in model-making for up-to-the-minute styling of truck-trailer combinations. Then there is the Mercedes Benz Actros in the bright and cheerful livery of "Haribo", the VW T3 as a fire service command vehicle and the VW Touareg as an Explosive Ordnance Disposal emergency vehicle. In its themed set called "Mercedes Benz – Partner to the transport industry", WIKING has included contemporary models of the two LP 321 and L 1413 flatbed trucks as well as the LPS 332 articulated truck for transporting chemicals – pure authenticity. An accessory set of sought-after WIKING cargo completes the array of new models available.

0700 01 Bus (MB O 6600 H Pullman)

This bus simply radiates that WIKING charm from the 1960s: along with the other model upgrades for February, the Mercedes-Benz O 6600 H Pullman has been fondly given a contemporary finish – the classic bus lives up to its name which translates as “migratory bird” and will de-finitely turn the heads of collectors. Beside it, the Lanz Bulldog makes a reappearance along with the enclosed

“Duck” from Citroën. Each of the models in this classic trio scores highly in the popularity stakes. Alongside the latest VW Amarok sits the scintillating Opel Manta A in the typical sports design from the 1970s characterised by its black bonnet and black stripe along the side. The Mercedes-Benz 500 SL also joins the range as the most promising youngtimer from the 1990s. Meanwhile the VW Beetle with its open roll back roof is already awakening the first feelings of spring. And the model upgrades for February 2011 also provide a foretaste of what is to come in terms of the N-gauge range: two car/caravan combinations in different colourways are also included along with the Mercedes-Benz as a rear tipping dumper truck.
